Release of Spy In 10 Years Seen

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 13 (UPI)—Swedish legal sources said today that Stig Wennerstroem, the former air force colonel sentenced yesterday to life in prison as a Soviet spy, could be a free man in 10 years.

Those familiar with this nation's penal system said Wennerstroem could come up for parole in 10 years, providing he exhibits good behavior in prison and is no longer considered a security risk.

Criminals sentenced to life in this welfare state seldom serve more than 15 years.
